“One of the most intimate and unforced indie performances of the season...another slam dunk ...rank this as among the more important independent releases to make headlines all year long,” writes Indie Source Magazine.

Singer/Songwriter Josef McManus's anticipated fourth White Owl Red album continues to explore the messy complexity of contemporary culture and values with ferocity and vulnerability. These ten songs embrace musical innovation without pandering to formula, seamlessly blending Country, Folk, Americana and Rock influences with indie vibes.

- Track 8: Wake Up
- Track 9: The Way I Feel Now
- Track 10: Working Class Heroes

“Provocative lyrical commentary...polarizing and unifying in narrative...crossover appeal...“Working Class Heroes” is a compelling song that demands a reaction out of its audience for better or worse, and in today's plasticized music business, this makes it quite the rare find indeed” -Music Existance

“Rolling resonant guitars thrumming with roots energy reminiscent of the powerful songs of Dylan and Woody Guthrie” -Rawkus Magazine

“Innovatively expresses what it means to be authentic in modern society in an honest, gritty, poignant and vulnerable way, during an unforgettable musical journey...driven by a blissful infusion of indie folk and roots-Americana...equally intelligent and hopeful...deeply felt social and political awareness” -Shock-Ya! Magazine
